The potential still exists for an asteroid to impact the Earth that would essentially wipe out life as we know it.

In terms of defending ourselves today, predicting where the asteroid is going to actually impact,

that's really all that we have.

So far, we have survived.

But what about the future?

To safeguard that, we should be acting now.

One day our planet's luck will run out.

It's simply a matter of time.

We must develop the technology to defend ourselves.
