Please read the following passage carefully and then answer the following questions.

Canada is a country in North America. To a stranger, the land must seem endless. A herring gull, winging its way from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria will travel as far as the distance from London to Baghdad. The vastness of the country startles the imagination of all its visitors. The observant visitor will note some differences. The Canadian variety of the national makeup is more pronounced than it is in the American melting pot. The eastern Canadian cities suffer the humidity of July and August. The Canadians did not have actual revolution or civil wars, but they had some uprisings. The lawmen in Canada are appointed from above, not elected from below.
